Nat'l team dominates local run-&-shoot

Anna Sonnerup, 28, of Hanover, N.H. outran her U.S. Biathlon Team teammate Mary Ostergren of Norwich, Vt. by nearly two minutes to win the women's elite race at the Kingsbury Summer Biathlon Series 5K held at Gould Academy, July 1.

Both women hit five of 10 targets and each miss added 30 seconds to their running times. Sonnerup placed eighth in the 1990 World Biathlon Championships in Oslo, Norway in the Olympic sport of biathlon (cross-country skiing and shooting).

First-time biathlon competitor, Molly Ware, 17, of Norway won the women's 5K novice race, with a final time of 33:06, running only 35 seconds slower than Sonnerup and hitting four of 10 targets.

Other local finishers in the women's novice race were Melissa Coulombe of Lewiston in fourth and Martha Newell of Bethel in fifth.

In the men's race, Keith Woodward, 39, of Craftsbury, Vt. outran Bethel's Ben Michaud to take the elite race in a time of 22:17, with three misses in the shooting.

Michaud had the best shooting of any of the 30 participants, missing only one of 10 targets. He edged out third place finisher and U.S. Biathlon Team member Erich Wilbrecht of Jackson, Wyo. by 12 seconds.

Other local finishers were Gould graduates Paul Koubek (fourth), Jim Palmer (sixth) and Kevin Davis (ninth).

Local participants Bob Ouwinga and Jonathan Goldberg of Bethel placed third and fourth in the men's novice 5K in an "international" field of eight which included Gould summer school students Mark Keschmann of Austria, Dmitri Todika of the Soviet Union and Rafael Parisi of Italy.

Many local people assisted as range officials and timers, including Roger Smith, Don Feeney, John Gasser, Steve Chandler, Bernie and Debby Michaud, Alberta Merrill, Ken and Betsy Paquette, Mike Cooper and Charlie Newell of Bethel; Bob and Paige Christie, Tom Williams and Dave Larsen of Rumford; and Tim Sawyer, Molly, Don and Matt Ware of Norway.

The Gould Academy event was part of the 50-race Kingsbury Summer Biathlon Series. Local biathlon continues throughout July with shooting practice and instruction each Thursday at 4 p.m. at the Gould Academy biathlon range off Grover Hill Road. There is no charge and no equipment is necessary. For more information contact Kirk Siegel at 824-2196.

Gypsy moths again nibbling at our edges

By MICHAEL DANIELS

"Sweeping them off the bulkhead was just like trying to sweep slime," said Bertha Tyler. "When I tried to stand on it, I slid like I was walking in mud."

At her trailer on Route 2 in Gilead, Tyler has been battling an invasion of gypsy moths, a resurgent statewide problem that so far has made itself felt only in scattered hot spots in Oxford County.

Experts warn, however, that more moths are probably on the way.

The last episode of serious moth damage in Maine occurred in 1981 when 655,000 acres were affected.

Since that time a variety of natural factors, including the moths' own boom-and-bust population cycles, have kept their predations to a minimum. In 1988, for example, only 100 acres in Maine were reported damaged by gypsy moths.

But the boom times may be back. Frank Wertheim, of the University of Maine Cooperative Extention, said reports of moth damage increased significantly last year (to 34,000 acres) and this year early reports indicate "a general upswing in the cycle," across central and southern Maine.

So far his agency has not received reports of moth damage from the Bethel area, Wertheim said, but a number of heavy infestations have been reported in nearby Lovell, Fryeburg and Brownfield.

For the most part, he said, the areas being hit hardest this year seem to be the ones that also suffered the most during the 1981 outbreak.

That's little consolation to Tyler, whose trees escaped serious damage in 1981 but have been nearly stripped bare this year.

And the voracious moths assault the ear as well as the eye. "It sounds like rain," she said of the constant murmur of caterpillars chewing at the leaves on her trees.

Wertheim agreed that living in a heavily infested area "can be like being in an Alfred Hitchcock movie."

At this point in the insect's lifecycle, there's little the homeowner can do to turn the tide. The most effective action is taken early, Wertheim said, usually before the problem is apparent.

In a small area, removing the egg masses in the fall or winter will help reduce the following year's infestation. Eggs below the snowline should be especially targeted, he said, since snow protects the eggs from severe cold, which can quickly kill them.

The Maine Forest Service suggests that in the spring the caterpillars can be trapped and destroyed under a burlap skirt tied around the trunk of the tree. They can also be contained by applying a band of "tanglefoot" around the trunk of the infested trees to form a barrier to prevent them from wandering and becoming a nuisance.

But on a larger scale such measures "aren't going to make a dent," Wertheim said. A biological insecticide such as B.t. is the weapon of choice in such situations, but is most effective when applied in mid-May, soon after the caterpillars have hatched.

A number of chemical insecticides can also be effective, but, again, they should be used in May or June and are best applied by a professional, especially when large areas are involved.

BARE, RUINED BRANCHES, WHERE LATE THE GYPSY MOTHS CHEWED. These hardwoods near Bertha Tyler's property in Gilead show the work of hungry gypsy moths. So far this season, there have been only a few outbreaks in the Bethel area, but experts warn the moth population appears to be on an upward swing in its cycle. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

Lake Christopher water quality holding

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Like many small Maine villages, with houses clustered together on small lots, frequently near a stream, Bryant Pond has had its share of problems adapting to modern sanitary requirements.

But improvement, while perhaps slow in coming, appears to be taking place—and will no doubt benefit one of the town's major assets, Lake Christopher.

A 1981 survey conducted by the state Department of Environmental Protection found a number of inadequate or malfunctioning septic systems in Bryant Pond Village, especially along Rumford Ave. and Church St.

These septic problems were of special concern because the effluent drained into the unnamed streams along these roads, and was carried eventually into Lake Christopher.

To correct the situation, in 1983 through 1985 the state spend nearly $50,000 to replace 12 of the worst of these systems, especially the straight-pipe systems on Rumford Ave.

Unfortunately, the state money ran out before the project could be completed, and a second state survey in 1987 found another four malfunctioning systems as well as two graywater systems.

With its own funds depleted, DEP turned the matter back to the town.

"We got a letter from DEP telling the selectmen that it was up to us to get the people to fix their systems," recalls former selectman Gary Wing.

But the selectmen balked, Wing said, in part because residents described the second DEP survey as superficial.

Wing said the selectmen also objected to the fact that the agency apparently targeted for inspection the systems of homeowners who had requested replacement during the first round of state funding.

"That was sort of unfair," he said.

But even without pressure from town officials, some homeowners have gone ahead and replaced their systems at their own expense.

"There are still problems out there," Woodstock Planning Board Chairman Margaret Hand said, but she added that most of the worst seemed to have been taken care of.

Hand noted that when a house is sold.

Fishing contest added to Mollyockett events

Get to work on those fishing poles, kids—the first annual Mollyockett Day fishing contest is coming up on Friday, July 20 (the day before Mollyockett Day), at Neil Olson's pond on the East Bethel Road.

The contest is open to anglers up to 13 years old. No experience is necessary, but all fishing poles used in the contest must be handmade.

Kids from all over are welcome, as are their parents—who can cheer their kids on as long as they don't actually help out with the fishing.

Prizes of $25 will be awarded for the best fishing outfit, the first fish and the largest fish.

The contest, which is being sponsored by Olson's tent Rental and Olson's Furs, will be held from 3 to 4 p.m. Plan to come a little early.

Entries wanted for Mollyockett Day Parade

The Bethel Lions Club is looking for any group, organization or individual interested in entering a float in the Mollyockett Day parade, Saturday, July 21 at 11 a.m.

Lion Ed Friel says the theme of this year's parade is 'Maine Street '90: 1890-1990—100 years of change and growth.'

He said a number of fire departments will be parading fire trucks, from old hand-pumpers to current models, illustrating the theme of change.

From kids with wagons to business or office group, Friel says he hopes others will join the parade with their own ideas.

Locke Mills Marketplace to be auctioned off today

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Marketplace in Locke Mills goes on the auction block today, July 11, at 1 p.m.

The Marketplace real estate and equipment will be auctioned off as a single unit; with prospective buyers required to produce $25,000 in cash or a certified check before the auction and to close the sale within 30 days.

The seller Raymond Green & Co, of Boston, has reserved the right to bid at the auction.

The Boston company foreclosed on the Marketplace in November of last year, citing the failure of its owners, David Mero and David Brunette, also of Massachusetts, to make payments on a $300,000 loan taken out a year earlier.

Mero and Brunette had closed the doors of the business in March of 1989, following a year-and-a-half long attempt to resurrect a grocery business there.

At one point they had employed 17 local people.

Prior to Mero and Brunette's attempt to establish the business, the property had languished in federal bankruptcy court for a year—after former owner John Praigg walked away from it, owing money to people across the state, as well as to the federal Small Business Administration.

The auction will be conducted by HAZA Enterprises of Saco.

TAMMINEN MINE—More than 50 rock hounds swarmed the surface and chipped away at Nestor Tamminen's mine in Greenwood last Saturday, on a field trip from the 29th Western Maine Gem, Mineral & Jewelry Festival, held the same day at the Oxford Fair Grounds.

Rock hounds hunt elusive Oxford County gemstones

By CHRISTY CROSS

The woods road leading into Nestor Tamminen's quarry in Greenwood glitters in the sun as shadows of the trees overhead dance and dapple down the hill.

It is mica that glitters, small flecks and palm-sized sheets.

The sound of hammers and chisels on stone splits the morning birdsong long before the woods open onto the pit. More than 50 rockhounds are gathered, searching the rubble and the rock face for quartz crystals, purple apatite, beryl, maybe, with luck, green tourmaline.

The occasion is the first of two field trips arranged for last weekend in conjunction with the Oxford County Mineral and Gem Club's 29th Western Maine Mineral & Jewelry Festival at Oxford Fairgrounds.

Mark Theriault is bent over a 2½x3 foot wooden frame. Spread over the wire mesh frame bottom is approximately a half pailful of rubble scooped from the ground near his feet. He pours water over the rubble and begins to sort through the washed chunks and pieces of stone.

Andover to penalize those without building permits

The Andover Planning Board has decided to set penalty fees for those who do not obtain a town building permit, it was announced at the selectmen's meeting last week.

The decision, retroactive to June 18, stipulates that the penalty will be calculated at three times the building permit fee, as determined by the fee schedule.

The fee schedule is as follows: Minimum fee, $15; residential, 2.5 cents per square foot; manufactured housing, $15; commercial structure, $1 per $1,000 construction cost; utility buildings, 1.5 cents per square foot.

The penalty on a $15 permit fee, therefore, will be $45, plus the original fee, for a total of $60.

Also, Ed Witt and Dave Grieg of the planning board told selectmen they had done research at the Oxford County Registry of Deeds and determined property purchased by Peter and Philip Corneliuson is a subdivision which is a violation of town ordinances, although in their lawyer's opinion it is not a subdivision. A subsequent applicant for a building permit has been denied one by the town. Both the Corneliusons have appeared before the planning board to plead their case and will be notified of the planning board's findings by certified letter.

In other business before the selectmen, it was announced that:

Opinions

We repeat...

Yes, we know. We ran the picture below two weeks ago. The reason it is running again is that we received not a single moose tale. Not one.

Since it is possible no one noticed the picture or read the invitation beneath it, and since it is impossible in this part of the state that no one has a moose tale, we decided to run the picture again, this time in (don't laugh) what we think might be a more noticed part of the paper.

And, given that this is the summer season when gardens need weeding, lawns need mowing, lakes need swimming in, trails need to be hiked on, we'll even write your moose tale for you. Just give us a call at 824-2444 and leave your name and telephone number. Assuming we're not deluged with phone calls, we'll get back to each and every caller.

And if we hear from no one this time, we'll give this up as a stupid idea—we promise.

MOOSE TALES, ANYONE? It seems that most people hereabouts have at least one moose story, either recent or vintage (i.e.,one that has improved with the telling). We'd like to hear yours. Please write it up and send it to the Bethel Citizen, P.O. Box 109, Bethel, Me. 04217, for possible inclusion in an upcoming issue. Also, please include your name and phone number.

Remembering the forgotten half

We've heard and read them time and again the past few years, yet each time the statistics on at-risk youth are repeated, they have fresh impact:

- Each year, up to 700,000 youth leave school before graduating.
- A study of youth who dropped out of high school in 1987 and 1988 revealed an unemployment rate of 57 percent.
- The same study showed that the unemployment rate for black teens who left school early was 77 percent.

These statistics, cited by Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole in her opening address, are the basis for the school-to-work conference held in Washington, D.C. in May.

Around 200 leaders from business, education and government attended the three-day event, which was co-sponsored by the Department of Education.

"For half of America's youth, college serves as a bridge between secondary school and a career path," Secretary Dole said. "However, for the non-college bound youth, the forgotten youth—the bridge between secondary school and a career is frequently unemployment. Too many of those who do find employment often bounce around from job to job, casting about as they try to find a niche."

But the 700,000 students who drop out of school each year apparently are not the only disadvantaged students.

Al Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, had more disturbing statistics from the National Assessment of Educational Progress:

- The percentage of American youth (still in school) who are at the top level of writing skills, that is, able to write an essay or letter, is between three and six percent. (By contrast, 28 percent of German students pass all sections of a five-day test).
- The percentage of students at the next level, able to write one or two paragraphs with one point to communicate and one or two errors, is 20 percent.
- Only four percent of all American students are in the top mathematical level.

"Yet 55 percent of American students go on to college and they could not be admitted to college in any other country in the industrialized world," said Shanker. "Clearly, the most advantaged kids who ever walked the earth are not learning much at school."

According to Shanker, all American students—those who keep studying as well as those who give up—lack something that is basic in European and Japanese schools: incentive.

"In other countries, you can't get into college unless you pass a national test," he said. "In the U.S., the question has become not what is the best I can do, but what is the least I can do to get by?"

While other industrialized nations have some connection that ties future jobs to school work done in the present, American students learn a rude lesson from life.

"Kids who do well in school end up with the same minimum wage jobs as the kid who played hookey," Shanker said. "In Germany, kids can see a difference between the students who do well in school and those who don't apply themselves. We're basically telling our students they'll get to the same place whether they learn or not. They get to college whether they excel or not, they get minimum wage jobs whether they go to college or not.

"We haven't been teaching kids that school is important. As a society, we're paying a terrible price."

Secretary Dole asked the group gathered for three days to keep four principles in mind while mapping out guidelines for school-to-work programs: that they motivate students to stay in school; that they allow even non-college bound youth to attain high academic achievement levels; that they directly link classroom curriculum to work site experience; and that they enhance prospects for meaningful, life-long employment.

With a workforce growing at a sluggish one percent a year, Secretary Dole said, we can't afford to forget these youth any longer.

Marc Tucker, president of the National Center on Education and the Economy, defined the incentive Shanker found missing in American society.

"The prize," said Tucker, "will go to the economy with the highest skill level and the highest-paying jobs."

THIS WEEK AT THE

Moses Mason House

The second annual Mason Family Gathering was held on July 1 at the Dr. Moses Mason House with nearly 50 persent.

Charles Mason Smith, M.D. of Harrison and Harold Mason of Falmouth handled registrations. Host and hostesses for the day were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mason of Falmouth and Dr. and Mrs. Rex Martin of Harrison. Tours of the Dr. Moses Mason House were conducted by Helen Morton and Margaret Davis for those Masons wishing to see the house.

A tour of the Broad Street Historic District was conducted by Bethel Historical Society Director Stanley R. Howe.

Elizabeth Mason Carter of West Bethel handled genealogical inquiries and those relating to Mason house and burial sites in the Bethel area. A slide show on the Masons of Bethel was conducted by Society Director Howe. Prizes were awarded to the oldest person attending, the youngest and the one who came the furthest (Ann Partridge of Oxford, Mass.).

Picnicking on the grounds of the Dr. Moses Mason House was enjoyed by a number of those attending as well as horseshoe pitching, badminton and croquet.

The July monthly meeting of the historical society was held in West Bethel at the Union Church. The annual picnic preceded the meeting and was held on the grounds of the 1896 church.

During the program portion of the meeting, Jane Hosterman and Connie Vautour provided some of the historical highlights of the old Route 2 section of West Bethel.

According to their presentation here was once one of the important agricultural areas of Bethel with rich farmland fronting the Androscoggin. The area was long (and in some cases) still dominated by persons with names like Grover, Wheeler, Bean, Barker, etc. In some cases, descendants continue to live along this mile long stretch of road stretching from railroad crossing to another.

Mrs. Hosterman and Mrs. Vautour, through the use of old photographs and numerous anecdotes, provided a rich account of many of the people who have lived here through the years.

During the business portion of the meeting, president Marvin Ouwinga announced that the next meeting would be held on Aug. 2 and would feature a discussion of the history of tourism in Maine by Dr. Richard Judd, a University of Maine history professor.

Letters to the editor

TERM 'LOGGER' CLARIFIED

To the Editor:

First of all I would like to congratulate the Smith's on being recognized as owners of an efficient woods operation. Hopefully Boise Cascade added a couple dollars a cord extra to their contracts as a display of appreciation for the excellent work they do.

My letter is mainly to clear up a conflict in titles. The Smiths are business people involved in the business of producing pulpwood and some spruce and fir logs. They are not loggers. I imagine David would tell you he no longer has time to actually do any logging as his managerial duties occupy his day for long hours. It is usually people in offices with time on their hands who come up with awards for "Outstanding Logger" and give them to people who don't cut trees. It's like giving the owner of the Boston Red Sox the Most Valuable Player award. An award to Smith Enterprise for Outstanding Logging Company would've been much more appropriate.

The article in last week's paper told of the shift from a "difficult, low-skilled job to a demanding quality-conscious profession." There's enough fertilizer in that statement to grow more trees than a feller-buncher can cut in a day. Logging is not shifting to the mechanical system talked about in the article, but pulpwood production on paper company land is. Companies are specializing in the logging industry as in many others. Machines cut trees for fuel chips and paper chips. Acres and acres are clearcut by these machines in much the same way corn is havested, but there is still a place for the truly quality-conscious prfoessional logger. The big hardwoods from which we get veneer for panelling and lumber for floors and furniture and large pines for finish lumber are all cut with chainsaws for a variety of reasons. Their size being more than a feller-buncher can handle is one reason and where they grow is another.

These trees grow way back on the mountains where grapple skidders can't operate. Mountains so high that eagles have to walk the last 50 feet to get over the top and so steep Sir Edmund Hillary would walk around them. I once cut wood so far up that I was momentarily confused by all the twinkling lights below me when walking out one evening a little later than usual. It required close scrutiny to discover I was looking down on the Milky Way. It's places like these that the real loggers go to work each day to cut the logs that give us the quality lumber used throughout our homes. The big trees are the trees that you cut on Monday morning and they don't finish falling until Tuesday.

Now let's talk about the low-skilled part of the statement. Probably a statement made by a person who takes his firewood saw to a shop to have it filed. Quite often people of average to low intellect confuse jobs requiring a minimal educational background to low-skilled jobs. Let's think of a few things an average logger can do and does do that many people hire others to do. He can repair a chainsaw after getting the parts. He can file a saw. It seems simple to me, but I sure see a lot of them in shops to be filed almost as if there were a special way to do it—an acquired skill perhaps. Loggers can pull apart the winch on a skidder and repair it, rebuild a diesel engine, replace gears in a transmission and drop a tree within three feet of where they want it nine times out of 10. They can find access to inaccessible areas and build bridges capable of supporting trucks weighing 70,000 to 100,000 pounds. Perhaps these are all things that can be done by low-skilled people, but I don't think so. The average person has to have a mechanic tell him what's wrong with his car, lawnmower, saw, etc. The logger diagnoses the problem himself and takes the machine apart, gets the pieces and repairs it, usually in the woods and usually with only his crew to help him and it has been this way for many years.

The arrival of very expensive machinery for harvesting trees in the state of Maine in an assembly line manner doesn't mean logging is suddenly more highly skilled, it merely means there are more jobs for equipment operators. Most of the saw men I know, myself included, have no desire to sit on a machine all day for 10 hours, which is why there is an abundance of them and few equipment operators. These are two different temperaments. As far as the labor shortage goes, that is nationwide in all types of businesses.

Let me finish by saying loggers have long been looked down upon and misunderstood by many of the people around them, but they don't pay much attention because they work in the woods away from people because that's where they want to be. Away from people with all their misconceived ideas of what each person's job is worth. I do feel it should be mentioned that some loggers feel they can leap tall buildings in a single bound and might not always watch where they land. This could result in a mean, nasty, smelly logger landing right on top of some pompous snob who said his chosen profession was "low-skilled."

TELSTAR HONORS

To the Editor:

Thank you "Bethel Citizen" for printing the academic awards received by Telstar students recently. They worked hard and should be recognized. I would especially congratulate those students who made honor roll all year, truly a commendable achievement. (A few names were mistakenly excluded—Jessica Coolidge is one I am aware of).

Mr. Bell presented six very special trophies for "Most Outstanding Boy/Girl" in each middle school grade. I applaud these fine kids—the ones I know personally exhibit scholarship, citizenship, dedication,...and they're fun.

Sixth grade—Annaliese Bass and Ben Fogg. Seventh grade—Angela Szente and Shane Billings. Eighth grade—Sarah Coolidge and Bill Chase.

Again, congratulations to all who worked hard at Telstar. May your love of learning grow with each year.

JOG STILL ALIVE

To the Editor:

Dear Tom Turkey:

I am truly sorry that you had to die last week when your owner shot my friend's dog in the face at close range. After all, when November arrived and you weighed in at 26 lbs. without your feathers, you would have been worth $.69 to $.89 per pound ($17.94-$23.14).

Your owner shot you himself and I say that because since he claimed that the dog had you and he was supposedly trying to rescue you, but pumped over 80 shots into the dog's face you surely had to be hit as well.

Your owner told me that he only shot the dog in the hind quarters at 50 feet or so to make him let go of you, but according to the x-rays from the vet, your owner doesn't know a dog's hind end from it's face.

Your owner claimed that you had a broken wing. I do not doubt that, but I would surely challenge just how it got broken, by the dog or by the shotgun? In any event it was a shame for you, but we both know your days were numbered. Not only did you get shot, you got your neck rung as well on the same day. You had about 150 days or so to live before your owner planned to wring your neck. You couldn't have weighed more than 15 lbs. without your feathers, so guess what, your caring and kind owner not only ate you, he made the owner of the dog pay $3.33 per pound penalty for you. That's right, you were definitely worth more dead last week than you would have been alive 150 days later.

Poor Tom, your untimely demise worked wonders for your owner. He got to eat you, plus he got paid $50 for doing it. Your owner caused great pain and suffering to a household pet, who was not carelessly let loose by his owner, but who in his youth and exuberance busted the screen door to get outside and investigate the world around him.

This incident cost his owner in excess of $250 in vet bills, but thank goodness we found a caring vet to save his life, for he had nearly bleed to death by the time we located him. It took two and a half hours to find the dog. Of course it did not help that your owner told me that the dog had gone in a different direction than he really went, but I suppose if one does not recognize a hind end from a face, one wouldn't know east from west either.

I'll bet the game warden did not check you Tom to see how many holes you had from gunshot wounds. He probably believed your owner's story. Same as I did originally, that he had only shot the dog from a long distance and didn't really hurt him much because to quote your owner, "He got right back up and took off down the road." This story is not meant to be humorous. It was one of the most cruel things I have seen in a long time. The dog is still alive, with a drain hanging from the side of his mouth.

It really is true that guns do not kill, people do. But why is it that so many people have guns? Are they really that afraid of the animals? Dog is known as man's best friend, but the reverse is too often not true.

Some of us wonder if the dog was shot because the dog belonged to a person from out-of-state, called "flat-landers" by some natives, or was it because the dog belonged to (a particular person)?

Please understand that the actions of a dumb animal, as we term dogs, cats, etc. are not being condoned here, but two wrongs never make a right. Man is not suppose to be that dumb. A caring and very angry native who likes animals and "flat-landers."

From Bethel... to Mijas, Spain

At approximately 3 a.m. last Tuesday morning, 20 tired but elated youngsters and their six adult traveling companions, returned to Bethel following two weeks in southern Spain.

Thunderstorms and bomb threats (not to their airplanes) caused numerous delays and missed connections during the getting to and from, group leader Jim Sysko reports, but the undeterred travelers had a wonderful time nonetheless.

The group was the second from Bethel to visit Spain under the auspices of the Spanish Youth Exchange, which is sponsored by the Bethel Rotary Club and the town of Mijas, Spain.

Two similar groups of Spanish youngsters visited the Bethel area in the summers of 1987 and 1989.

The expenses for local youngsters taking part in the program are covered by a series of fund-raising events put on by the Rotary and by the youngsters themselves, with the youngsters' families also contributing to the trip.

The exchange program is open to all SAD #44 area youngsters ages 12-14. The next Bethel contingent will be going to Spain in the summer of 1992—the year Spain is to host the Summer Olympics and a World's Fair.

The following description of this year's trip was provided by Linda Saunders:

Mijas is located on the Mediterranean coast in the south of Spain, about an hour's drive east of Gibraltar. A few years ago it was a village of about 4,000 people, but has grown with the influx of tourists to over 40,000 people.

During the two weeks they were in Spain the Bethel area children and their Spanish hosts' children participated in activities chosen to give them an understanding of the history and economy of this part of Spain. Additional activities allowed the children to play together and enjoy learning more about each other.

One day the group traveled to Jerez to see a performance of the Royal Spanish Riding School. Along the way, they passed Gibralter, getting a good view of the famous rock and fortress.

This riding school is said to be the best in the world in the intricate act of Dressage; certainly the things they trained horse and rider to do were amazing.

On the return trip the group traveled inland rather than along the coast and made a brief stop in the city of Ronda. This is a beautiful old city perched on cliffs which have helped protect it for many centuries. Ronda is also the place where the modern form of bullfighting originated.

During another long day trip the group visited Granada for a tour of the Alhambra. This remarkable palace was built by the ruling Moorish kings and was such a fine example of the Moors' art that it was regarded as one of the Wonders of the World in that period. After their defeat of the Moors, the Catholic monarchs Ferdinand and Isabella occupied the Alhambra and from here authorized Columbus' voyage.

Another day was spent relaxing on the beach. The town has a youth camp on the shore of the Mediterranean which served as the group's base this day.

Other activities ranged from visiting the offices of the local and provincial governments, to visiting a cave occupied by man more than 50,000 years ago, to playing at the Water Park.

In addition to the specific group activities, the children enjoyed the rare opportunity to live with a host family and learn first hand something of their culture.

Mijas now participates in a half dozen similar exchanges, but reports are that they consider the exchange with Bethel to be among the best. This program is expected to increase international understanding, particularly by giving the participants an appreciation of how much alike our people really are.

Other benefits of the program are that it shows the value of working to achieve a goal and teaches our children about our local economy while the Spanish group is visiting here. The following quote from a parent's letter to Rotary sums it up nicely.

"We feel that the students involved in this project have benefited far more than they may realize. (Our son) was apprehensive about the trip a year ago, but by June he was looking forward to seeing Spain. He has developed self-confidence and a much better attitude about school. He's excited about taking Spanish. History, which he has always hated, is interesting now, because he has seen some of the things that until this trip he had only read about.

"This project doesn't only benefit the 20 children who went to Spain. It benefits everyone involved and the community in general. These children can share their experiences with others who, too, can learn some interesting and valuable facts and insights."

Newry to sponsor Junior Maine Guides Course

The Newry Recreation Committee is sponsoring a Junior Maine Guides Course July 28-31.

It is open to boys and girls between the ages of 11-15. No previous canoeing experience is necessary. Denise Gauthier and Kevin Slater will be teaching the course on the Moose River near Jackman.

It's an excellent opportunity for kids to safely learn traditional Maine Guide canoeing and camping skills.

The cost will be approximately $25 per participant to cover food and is limited to a maximum of 12 kids. (No one will be turned away if the cost is a problem). If you are interested or have further questions there will be a pre-course sign-up meeting Tuesday, July 10, at 7 p.m. at the Newry Town Office, or you may call Kevin Slater at 824-2073.

Newry camp ignited by bolt

A severe thunderstorm here late July 4 sent two bolts of lightning through trees and one ignited a camp and shed along the Bear River.

Norman Davis' camp was engulfed in flames when a dozen fireman from Newry arrived at the scene one-quarter mile from Route 26, said Chief Virgil "Tink" Conkright. The building was set ablaze, he said, when a bolt of lightning struck a pine tree about four feet away and traveled along the ground under the cottage as it set pine needles on fire. The camp was situated on a knoll beside the river.

Flames were 30 to 40 feet in the air when firemen arrived with all the department's three trucks. Trees surrounding the camp were charred from flames and heat.

It took Newry firefighters a little more than four minutes to get to the scene which is accessible via an unmaintained dirt road. When one truck became stuck in the gully firemen off-loaded hose and walked to the camp to battle the blaze. Chief Conkright estimated about 5,000 gallons of water were pumped onto the burning structure and surrounding woods. Davis later used his skidder to free the firetruck.

Davis said the camp was uninsured.

BHC hires new coordinator

The Bethel Area Health Center has hired Linda Ray as the center's new health care coordinator.

A graduate of Central Maine Medical Center School of Nursing in 1981, Ray received a bachelor of science degree in health education in 1983. She continued her studies at Columbia University where she graduated in 1986 with a masters degree in physiology.

She and her husband, an artist, live in the Buckfield area.

In her new job Ray will be studying the Bethel area to asses the special health needs of the residents and to determine how they can be met.

She says she is particularly concerned about meeting the needs of those people who come to the health center whose incomes are well below the poverty level.

Also, she says, she is concerned about those who are unable to get to the center, including women who have no pre-natal care, and she is thinking about working with the local Hospice group to coodinate easing the burden of sick, elderly residents.

Ray said she would appreciate calls from area people with suggestions on health needs. She said all calls will be kept confidential.

Herd of heifers hits the road

A herd of Holstein heifers, about 20 in all, took a short excursion Monday afternoon along the Sunday River Road near the Bethel-Newry town line, according to Bethel Police Chief Brian Stowell.

Stowell said Scott Sumner heard about the herd while listening to a CB radio and dropped by the police department at 3:15 p.m. to advise him of the potential traffic hazard.

"When I got there, there were hoof prints in Bethel but the cows were in Newry," Stowell said late Monday afternoon.

He said that, from the tracks, he believed the cows had made their way from a pasture behind Roberts' Poultry Farm. "We surmise that they got out through a break in the fence on the Newry side then crossed Sunday River into Bethel," Stowell said. "After they crossed the river they apparently took the road until they got to Charlie Bean's field."

Stowell said, "They were resting (in the field), looking idyllic. Just being cows, that's all they were doing."

Stowell said the owner of the cows, Robbie Wormell of West Paris, had been called and he expected Wormell would return them to the pasture before their wanderlust struck again.

A week in the life of HILLARY HARRISON

Howdy, howdy. How's it going? Pretty good here. Except that all of my friends are either in camp or another state. Renee Zantay, one of my friends, moved to Massachusetts at the end of the school year. She called me last Tuesday. She wasn't feeling well and wished she could come back here. She said that she truly disliked it there. Maybe she'll come back for a few days this summer. I hope so.

Heather got back from Spain last week. She had a pretty good time except for when she slammed her finger in the car door. She even got to see one of the seven wonders of the world. She saw the Granada Castle where Christopher Colombus asked for the grant to the new world. She said it was interesting to see shows that we have in Spanish. Now I'm jealous that I wasn't there. Maybe I'll try to go next time. See ya next week.

James Gilbert and son, Mike, came up from Westbrook Friday and took his father, Joe Gilbert, fishing with them.

Muriel and Joe Gilbert went with his cousin, Bernard, and Florence Pilotte of Florida to visit Jean and Al Collet in Standish on July 4.

Ernest Lee of Littleton, N.H. and Blanche and Rosaire Gagnon of Lewiston have visited the Gilberts recently.

This year is a test of my dedication to gardening. First some seeds, like corn, didn't come up good at all but rotted, because, I assume, the ground wasn't warm enough. Found that other gardeners had the same problem. Then the starlings snipped off the tops of most of the transplants. Now we are having to cover the plants to protect from frost. Frost in July isn't that terrific. For two mornings I've had 40 degrees but Saturday I wasn't up til 6:30 so it had time to warm up. Joe Gilbert had 35 degrees on Friday and 32 degrees this morning.

July 4 was pretty quiet except for Mother Nature who put on some fireworks for evening entertainment. Carl saw the fireworks at Oxford Plains the evening before.

Marcus Deegan, son of Henry and Betty Deegan of Cape Elizabeth, graduated June 4 from Cheverest High School in Portland. Attending from up here were Leah Deegan, Florence Beck, Robert Deegan, Sally Smith, John, Joan and Jillian Kimball, Kathy Lessard, Danny and Marie.

Leah Deegan and Vera Cross went to the open house for the new veterans' nursing home in Scarborough last weekend.

Ronnie and Sally Smith and Kathy Lessard have taken their children and mother to Storyland and Santa's Village.

Kathy's children had never heard thunder out home in California. During the first shower after they got here, they ran to the door to listen.

The community entends its deepest sympathy to all of Bob Lowe's family. Bob will be greatly missed by all of us, as well as the Legion he was so active in and his many, many other friends and family. Bob died Thursday, June 28, at Togus.

Caffeine: Most Commonly Used Drug

Caffeine is considered the most commonly used drug in the United States. The primary method of consumption is through the drinking of coffee, tea, and other beverages. According to recent statistics, about half of the American population regularly drink coffee, the most frequently used source of caffeine. The average amount consumed by Americans is two cups per day – providing about 100mg of caffeine in each cup.

According to the Handbook of Nonprescription Drugs, caffeine is considered safe when taken orally in doses of 200 mg or less every 3 to 4 hours. A large number of nonprescription medicines, such as pain relievers, stimulants, and cold/allergy products, contain caffeine. In most persons, caffeine in doses of 200 mg has been shown to increase alertness and decrease drowsiness and fatigue.

Excessive use of caffeine may cause anxiety, irritability, sleep disturbances, and headaches. Caffeine consumption should be avoided just prior to laboratory blood work or a urine analysis.

Recent studies have found no link between caffeine and cancer. Individuals with glaucoma, heart disease, gastric problems, and anxiety disorders should take caffeine with care or not at all.

First its a moose and now its a raccoon that is paying us a visit. We were a bit surprised when he first appeared at our feeder but I understand he's been making the rounds in the neighborhood trying for a handout here and there. My cats were fascinated by him but wisely gave him a wide berth. Raccoons may appear tame but they are still wild animals.

It is strange how stress can bring on illness or at least seem to speed it up. Marcia brought her dog Cocoa and two cats, Misty and Jasper, to stay with me until she and her husband go to Florida in August. Twelve year old Misty has always been shy so we were not surprised that she spent a lot of time hiding but she always came out to eat. Last week she appeared to be having trouble breathing and then she stopped eating. When a round of anti-bioties did not clear up the problem they x-rayed her lungs to find out one lung was completely blocked by a tumor that appeared to be cancerous so a painful decision was made not to prolong her suffering. She was an animal that did not like things to disturb her world and moving is stressful. Likewise, my dad was fine until he lost his wife and then it wasn't long before he too was suffering with cancer. Strange, as I said before.

This was a special morning here in the country.

The sun inched its way up to take its first glimpse at the horizon before 6. I was up early; the dew sprinkled my slippers, as I went to feed the talking birds and the country air filled my nostrils. Listen—can you hear the quiet?

A few ominous clouds filtered the morning's first light.

Nestled on the back shore of the pond stood the blue heron.

Everyone who lives in the country shares a lot of the same type of beauty, as I do. But it's unfortunate that not everyone has learned to see that beauty. Through photographs I have captured much that I have learned to see. I have appreciated it while working, walking, listening, feeling, touching and smelling. Marvelous discoveries were made in this way.

One morning I had the pleasure of observing the emergence of a colorful creature, the tiger swallowtail on my clothesline. At first the wings were shriveled, the body engorged with fluid. But within minutes the fluid was pumped out into the veins of the wings, expanding them. They became broad and patterned. How lovely.

I am surrounded by wildlife, but natural beauty isn't only in birds and butterflies. There is the sunshine when rising and the sunset. There is the sunlight glowing through colored leaves. The dewy spider webs on the grass and the fog over the pond are fascinating. The masses of ferns, iridescent beetles and fireflies intrigue me. How I enjoy the latter twinkling across my lawn or perhaps lighting on my window screen, peeping inside. Rainbows, reflections in puddles and summer clouds I see so often.

It is endless. Always it is there. One only has to see.

I love kids and their laughter's music coming through the air. They make long chains with dandelions around their necks placed with care. There are bat rides and picnics in the sun. All year round I like it, everyday through the year, but the time I enjoy most is when summer is here.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Silver tendered a 45th wedding anniversary party at her home for her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Felt, Sunday afternoon. It was held outdoors with Mr. Silver tending the barbeque of hotdogs and hamburgers. The table was loaded with casseroles, salads, cheeses, baked beans and other goodies. A bridal cake was cut and served with ice cream to the guests.

After the dinner they all enjoyed music featuring the Bedard Orchestra and Dot Conwell, Johnny Howe, Elden Hathaway, Bertha Benoit and Richard Felt sitting in.

Many pictures were taken of the group.

This was held from 2:30-4 until a heavy downpour broke up the party.

A surprise feature of the party was the presence of Barbara's mother, Agnes Coffin, age 85, who was in a wheelchair but enjoyed the party. Mrs. Coffin lives in Milton Plantation. There were around 53 present. Mr. and Mrs. Felt received many gifts and cards for their anniversary.

On Sunday, June 24, over 25 people, family members and close friends gathered to celebrate a surprise 21st birthday dinner party for Jackie Tibbetts of Norway at her grandmother's, Esther Davis, home. The party was given by Jackie's mother, Patricia Tibbetts, and grandmother, Esther Davis.

A delicious dinner was enjoyed and Jackie received many lovely gifts.

In addition to Jackie's fiance, Tim Kennagh from South Paris, the out-of-town guests were from Bryant Pond, Locke Mills, Poland, Brunswick, Cumberland, Norway and South Paris.

Jackie is a 1988 graduate of Oxford Hills High School and is attending Mid-State College in Auburn. She is employed by Evening Delight Catering Service and is a WSI swimming instructor and life guard at Norway Lake.

Patricia Tibbetts of Oxford had dinner with her mother, Esther Davis, and her cousin, Edith Deegan, Sunday.

Esther and Olive Davis went to North Bridgton where they join with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews traveling to Denmark strawberry farm to pick strawberries. There were a lot of berrypickers ahead of us, but the berries were plentiful and very good picking. We were told this was the fourth picking.

The July meeting of the Historical Society will feature Herschel Abbott speaking on the Pinhook School. Come and learn something about this aspect of Woodstock History. The Historical Society has some information on collecting antiques, too. Thanks to all those who have helped to watch the museum this summer. Meeting night is July 14, 7 p.m. at the museum.

Esther Davis was in Livermore, Saturday, calling on her brother, Donald Brown, who is in the hospital and sister, Emily Pike.

Ellsworth Hathaway is installing new aluminum windows in his house.

The next Willing Workers meeting will be held July 11 at 7 p.m. at the Union Church.

We will be making the final plans for the upcoming supper to celebrate Woodstock's 175th birthday. The supper will be held in the Grange Hall in Bryant Pond from 5:30-7, Friday, July 27.

Please plan to attend the meeting, we need all the help we can get to make this supper a success. We need to raise money to do some much needed work on the building.

Woodstock Extension will tour Burlington Homes in Oxford on July 18 at 10 a.m. Please meet at the Town Hall by 9:15 to car pool.

45th ANNIVERSARY—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Felt of South Woodstock, celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary with a surprise party at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Silver, Sunday afternoon.

Northwest Bethel

By CLARICE GIBSON

July 4 has come and gone and brought it's own fireworks around with the thunder and lightning. We had a very quiet day here as noon came and we all stayed home. We did, however, go over July 3 to Ira and Kristin's home for a supper birthday party for Ira. Also present were Frank's sister Roberta Pevear and husband Eddie; Eddie's sister-in-law, Blanche Pevear; and their niece Verna Pevear of Hampton Falls, N.H.; and Kristin's parents, Sheldon, Marsha and son Michael Greene of South Paris and a friend from Casco.

June 30 Wilfred and Kim Gibson came for supper and slept in their van.

July 5 I was pleasantly surprised when Elaine Packard Weston of Norway and Louise Loring of Gilead made me a visit. I, and hope they did too, had an enjoyable afternoon. Friday morning my sister, Iva Holden, of Norway came for coffee and brought me a highchair. James William is now of the age if you hold him anything within his reach is either spilled or taken in his hands. I was trying to remember what happened to the highchair that I had for the boys. Guess after five boys I left it behind on one of my moves.

June 25, Victor, Judy, Jessie and Vicky Coolidge with Vic's sister, Phyllis Barnhill, and nieces, Brenda Barnhill and Debbie Lacy, all of Florida went to L.L. Bean in Freeport, to Portland Headlight and visited Vic's and Phyllis niece, Pam, in Portland.

Sally Hannon and Elaine Hutchins have been teaching V.B.S. at Pleasant Valley Church in West Bethel.

Cassie Mason, son of Dr. John and Tracy Mason, went July 1 to an afternoon bike party at Sarah Gamble's home in Bethel.

June 28 Tracy and Cassie Mason went to the Teddie Bear's picnic at the library.

Andrew and Alicia Benson of Augusta came July 1 to his grandparents, Stan and Althea Brown. They all went to the Moses Mason House for the descendents of Capt. Hugh Mason.

Jon and Seth Howe, sons of Bob and Linda Howe, have started swimming lessons at Songo Pond. Monica Burke of Sunday River is the instructor.

July 1, Robert Howe went to Ashland to attend the buffet dinner in honor of Rev. Thomas L. Caton, who recently celebrated 25 years of Christian Ministry. Rev. Caton used to be pastor of West Parish Congregational Church here in Bethel.

Homer and Edie Smith went to their son's, Larry Smith, and family in East Conway, July 4.

Sometimes I feel like I am writing too much about our family, but so often people will say that they have news or so and so happened, but that isn't worth putting in that I don't have too much else to write about.

July 2 Kristin called and told us a moose was in the river. We went down and I watched it a long while. It was a cow moose and still there when I left.

The Dreaded Task

I found the task that I had dreaded so/Was not so difficult when once begun;/It was the dread itself that was the foe,/And dread once conquered means a victory won.

By DORIS C. LAWRENCE

A lot of places shut down for the July 4 holiday week. Quite a few headed for Cathedral Pines. Hope the weather was good for them.

Tom Christman mowed the grass at the Community Hall.

Tuesday, July 3, 21 Senior Citizens from West Paris went to Shorelands Restaurant at Harrison. The dinner was delicious.

Callers have been Odell Heath, Patty Bean and granddaughter Jessica Berbue, Dale Coffin and Jimbo, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Thayer and Jason, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Card, Joe Vatcher, Howard Anderson and Richard Felt.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Inez Hart. She used to live in North Paris and so did her parents.

I visited Richard and Barbara Felt Monday so she could give me the dickens for keeping the party a secret. Well I've got broad shoulders.

I suppose Barbara Gallant has retired and taking it easy. We miss her down this way.

Sunday, July 1, Richard and Barbara Coffin Felt were given a surprise 45th anniversary party outdoors at their daughters and son-in-law, Roy and Sharon Silver, from 2-4 p.m.

They were married June 30, 1945 by Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes at West Paris. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Coffin, were their attendants. They have one daughter, Sharon Silver, and one granddaughter, Jennifer Felt.

Richard has always lived on the farm for 67 years where he was born. It was Richard's grandfather's, Granville Felt, farm. Barbara has been a homemaker, Richard has farmed, been selectman and has a band that plays every Saturday night for dancing.

Doris Lawrence, aunt of Barbara gave Barbara a daisy with one red rose in the center silk corsage and Richard a daisy boutonniere, also the anniversary cake was made by Sherry Kuvaja Morse who is a third cousin and the cake was cut by Doris Lawrence and third cousins, Amanda and Jeremy Heath, of North Waterford passed it around and Jeanne Millett, a cousin, served the ice cream.

Granddaughter Jennifer Felt took video pictures of the affair. I hear it was very good. Music, by Bill Lona, Ed Bedard, Elden Hathaway, John Howe and Dot Canwell, was very enjoyable. Bertha Benoit sang the Anniversary Waltz, granddaughter Jenny Felt played the drums for one piece, she plays the drums in the Telstar Band. Alice Roberts, Richard's sister, nephew Carl Roberts, niece "Nonie" Cole and Agnes Coffin, Barbara's mother, were able to come. There were 51 guests. A basket full of cards with money and other gifts.

Hamburgs and hotdogs were served by Roy Silver and a delicious smorgasboard with punch. About 4:10 p.m. it started to rain and everyone scattered. Should have had a video of that. We got "wet," period. We had an enjoyable time. Esther Davis and Richard Felt did a polka.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oja, Evelyn Chamberlain, Susan Abbott, Iva Grover, Lorraine Oja and children attended a bridal shower for Cindy Lawhorn at Portsmouth, N.H.

Newry

By GIL SEELEY

The Canadians are rolling...Hundreds of cars go by my house in a short time. Poor little deer who cross the road are in danger...I had a little one come to my door Monday at 11 a.m. and stayed in the yard for about half an hour. I hope he can make it to maturity. The Bachelders watch a moose in their yard almost every day. And I saw my neighbor blowing a long blue horn the other evening walking up and down the road hoping to entice a moose he saw in his yard once in awhile.

Get ready, get set for the big Maine Street '90 flea market at the Newry Town Building on Sunday, July 15 starting around 10 a.m.

Everyone wishes Amy Hanscom a happy birthday and many more.

The Newry Ladies who "bowl for fun" at the Oxford Lanes in Rumford were Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Olive Anderson and Julie Littlefield. Rena Powers was a guest. Betsy was high on the triples lacking only two pins to make 300. She was also high on the singles with one string of 102 and one of 107. All went to lunch and shopping.

Kevin Slater of the Mahoosuc Mountain Adventures and two other instructors from Outward Bound will be guest speakers at the Bear River Grange Hall July 14 and a potluck supper will be served at 6 p.m. The program will start at 8. The public is invited to both. Bring a salad, cassarole or desert.

Services was held at the Newry Community Church, Sunday, July 1, with Pastor Rodney Hanscom officiating and his daughter Nancy at the organ. The call to worship was Psalm, 48:9-10. The scripture readings were Isaiah, 58:1-12, Ephesians, 5:1-16 and St. John, 1:15. The message was "Who am I?"

Mother Nature would not be outdone July 4. At around 11 p.m. no competition with local fireworks...lightning struck quite a few places in Newry...Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davis' camp was burned to the ground when lightning struck a tree next to it. It struck again in the yard of the Bachelders altho no damage there. Other locations were also reported. It was a wild period with heavy rain before it calmed down. But we were lucky that we had no electric outage here.

Congratulations to Norman and Louise Tetley on their 50 years together. Happy anniversary.

Norman and Louise Tetley were given a surprise party at the home of Bob and Cindy Moxcey in honor of their 50th wedding anniversary on July 6.

A buffet dinner was enjoyed by all and a beautiful cake made and decorated by Bob Moxcey's sister was cut by the couple.

Norm and Louise received gifts and cards from all their friends and the "Funsters."

The message of Pastor Rodney Hanscom, Sunday, June 24, was "Is the Doctor in?" "There is a balm in Gilead to make the wounded whole, there is a balm in Gilead to heal the sin sick soul, sometimes I feel discouraged and think my work's in vain, but then the Holy Spirit revives my soul again." In Bible times these tree buds were boiled in olive oil to make a salve for outside the body and a tea was made to cure a cough from a cold...One took care of the spiritual side and the other the physical side.

The Newry ladies "who bowl for fun" were in Rumford last week. They were Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Louise Tetley, Sylvia Wight and Gil Seeley. Rena Powers was a guest and also, Julia Goodwin from Belfast. Gil was high on the triples and also high on the singles with one string of 100 and one of 99. Joan Tedford of Sandy's Den at Newry Corner gave Betsy and Gil each a towel inscribed, "World's Greatest Bowler." Karlene will get hers later. I thought that was great, thanks Joan. After the game all went to lunch and did some shopping.

Karlene's mother, Julia Goodwin, returned to Belfast after spending a couple of weeks here in Newry and taking back a little cabinet her son-in-law, Reginald Bachelder, made for her, I went along for the ride and on our way up there we saw a deer, a rabbit and a coydog at different locations. On our way back Karlene and I had to stop three times because of heavy down pour and hail. When we got home it hadn't even rained here.

A lovely morning this Tuesday morning as I sit down to type. Hope it stays that way all day and tomorrow, also. We could stand a few days without rain or showers.

It is a busy time for Russell as he tries to keep up with work in the gardens. We have had lot of fresh greens as well as radishes and expect to be having some snow peas today. Those are the ones that you eat the pods and all. I shall try stir frying some of them, I guess.

Have finished a runner I was crocheting on and now started a baby set for Laura to put in their sale in Andover a little later on. She doesn't like to crochet but knits like a house afire. She makes beautiful mittens with patterns in them and sells some of them. She is a busy lady like the rest of us.

Last Wednesday was the day Peggy had hoped to see one of her old classmates but had a call in the morning cancelling the visit as her husband had been taken ill and had to go to the hospital. Sure hope Tink is better by now and that Beatrice Felt will get another chance to come to visit Peggy.

In the afternoon, Peggy went to East Andover to give Laura a permanent. She was gone till quite late but it takes a while to give a perm.

Thursday was a sunny day and Russell decided to go barefoot but didn't put any sunscreen on his feet and burned the tops of them quite badly so they were swollen and very red. Still having some trouble with them but they are better than they were. He couldn't go dancing Saturday night because of their being so sore.

Peggy was on the go again Thursday. She went down and got Mary Smith and they went to visit Charlotte Cole in Greenwood and had a picnic lunch then visited folks around the area and a nice couple they know in Hanover. Had a good time.

In the evening, we had a surprise call from some of our cousins, Elvie and Martha Birney, as well as their sister, Margaret Oman. They brought up some stuff for the Rowe reunion which is to be held here on July 22. We were glad to have them visit a little as we don't see them too often, only once in awhile in the grocery store.

Expected to go see Dr. Jealous on Friday but got a call cancelling my appointment so had to find someone else to give me a treatment and finally got Dr. Field to see me in the afternoon. It is hard to find doctors to see one anymore. They don't work full weeks as the old timers did nor seem as dedicated in many ways.

Had gone to town in the forenoon to get some new tires put on my car but they only had one in my size even though they had been ordered before, so had to wait until Saturday morning to go get them and they still only had one tire for me. Got to wait a little over a week for the other tire.

Tom called in on Saturday morning and was going flea marketing and asked me to go but as I had to get lunch I declined but Peggy went with him while I stayed home to cook.

Peggy went to the dance at Locke Mills in the evening but Russell stayed home as his feet were still sore and bothering a lot.

Sunday was a cloudy day and expected it to rain most any time but it held off till afternoon and evening.

We had been invited to go to an anniversary party for Richard Felt and wife, Barbara, Sunday afternoon. They had been married 45 years on June 30. Peggy, Russell and I went and had a good visit with other folks who came to share the nice party. Their daughter, Sharon, had gotten the party together for them and did a good job of it. I was so delighted to see Barbara's mother there. I hadn't seen her in years and she looked mighty good to me. It is always so good to see old friends one has not seen for years and that was one of the occasions.

Monday morning and though a little cloudy Peggy did a wash and it got dry okay. Grange at Franklin Grange and I had charge of the program and getting the officers for the evening. I had written many ladies to come to be officers for me as it was ladies night and I like to have them come from many Granges. There were several different Granges represented there. Kariann and Courtney Woolf came up to dance for their old grandma on the program and I think all enjoyed it. Seemed to at least.

So many did something for me and I am most grateful to all who came and helped out. One of the funny things on the programs was the entertainment put on by Rudy Whitney which all enjoyed very much. All in all, it was a nice evening for all. I hadn't put on a program for some time so was nervous about getting it up but am glad all worked out fine.

One thing I want to mention is the fact that Olive Davis of our Grange, Franklin Grange #124, has had jar rubbers for sale to many folks and if anyone needs some she could get some for you or tell you where to send. It is a community project for the Grange and a good one where folks couldn't get jar rubbers last year. I know I tried in so many places with no luck at all and it is great that she found a place to send for them.

Didn't get any news from Mary this morning as she was gone so will have to try again next week. Take care one and all and hope all enjoyed the Fourth with whatever style you desire.

Other events include a series of bike races for all ages, musical entertainment, a softball tournament, special Bean Hole Bean T-shirts and hat sales, childrens events and an auction.

The climax of the Festival will be the serving of the bean hole beans. Although food will be available all during the day, the traditional bean hole beans, hot dogs, coleslaw, rolls and dessert will not want to be missed.

Once again, Beanmaster, Larry Farmer and his crew will bake over 700 pounds of beans in huge kettles buried in the ground and the people will line up early for the mouth watering food.

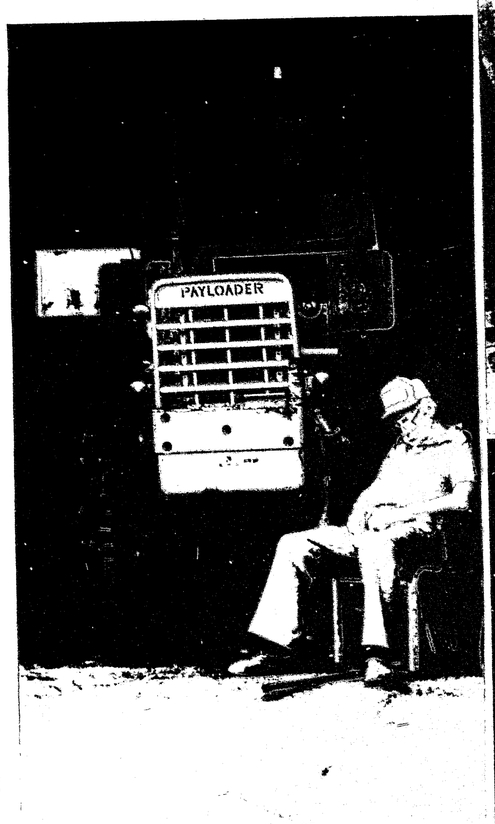
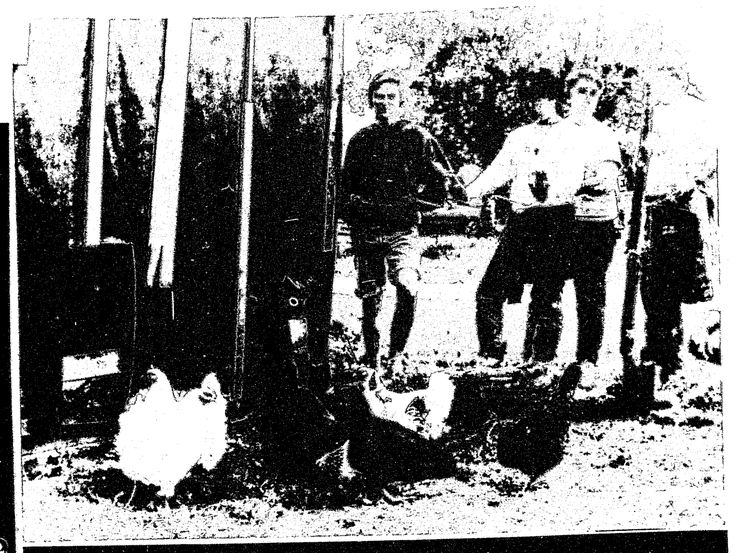
Farm Day Open House





FARM OPEN HOUSE—The Korhonen Farm in West Bethel, the Robert Hastings farm in East Bethel and Hi-Vu Farm in Woodstock participated in Farm Open House Day on July 1. Sponsored by the Androscoggin and Sandy River Valleys Agricultural Viability Project, participating farms invited folks to bring a picnic and make a day of visiting. Above, Robert D. Hastings catches a quick 40 winks during a slow moment at Hastings Farm. At top right, visitors took in the chickens at Korhonen Farm and, right, Tony Lorraine and son Jon Ryan played with the little porkers.

Chamber Music Festival announces 18th season

The Sebago Long Lake Region Chamber Music Festival has announced dates for its 1990 summer concert season.

This will be the Music Festival's 18th season.

Five Tuesday evening performances will take place on July 17, 24 and 31 and Aug. 7 and 14.

The festival this year will be returning to the beautiful and historic chapel on the grounds of Bridgton Academy in North Bridgton, following the completion of renovations of that facility during the last two years.

All concerts begin at 8 p.m. Tickets will be $10 for individual concerts, or $40 for the entire series of five concernts. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the Bridgton Public Library, or ordered through the mail.

The concerts will be as follows:

July 17—the 18th season opens with a program of three great quintets from three centuries: The "D Major Viola Quintet" by Mozart; one of his last chamber works, the exciting but seldom heard "Quintet for Winds and Strings" by 20th century giant, Prokofieff; and one of the most sublime of all chamber works, the "Clarinet Quintet" by Brahms.

Featured will be clarinetist Carmelo Galante and the young prize-winning Canadian violinist, Scott St. John.

July 24—an early Divertimento by Mozart and the high-spirited Octet by Spohr will feature a pair of French horn players, John Boden, principal horn of the Portland Symphony, and Edward Brown, principal horn of the Orquesta Filarmonica in Santiago, Chile. The beautiful "Seranata Invano" by Nielson was conceived for an unusual combination of winds and low strings. We are proud to present the North American premiere of the "Concerto for Solo Harpsicord and Strings" by Australian composer, Mary Mageau, with Audley Green as soloist.

July 31—this program, dedicated to long-time festival supporter Leonard Shiman, who died in January, features pianists Frieda and Stehpen Manes in a four-hand work by Schubert, a Hayden Trio and the infrequently heard Dvorak "Piano Quartet in D Major." Virtuosic wind playing will be heard in Martinu's "Four Madrigals" and Mendelssohn's "Concertstuck in D Minor."

Aug. 7—Randolph Bowman, recently appointed principal flutist with Cincinnati Symphony, will be featured in "Bachianas Brasileiras No. 6" by Villa-Lobos and the Trio by Weber for flute, cello and piano. The program opens with an unusual "Trio Sonata" by Bach for oboe and viola and closes with a perennial favorite, the "Piano Quartet in C Minor" by Faure.

Aug. 14—Portland trumpet virtuoso, John Schnell, will be paired with festival favorite Paul Wolfe for Vivaldi's "Concerto for Trumpet and Violin." A stellar string cast continues with Schoenberg's romantic sextet, "Transfigured Night." Mendelssohn's "Viola Quintet in A Major" brings the season to a rousing conclusion.

Fifteen to 20 musicians each summer gather from all around the United States. Many have been with the festival since it's inception; many more return year after year. The 22 musicians performing during the 1990 season have accrued a total of 217 seasons with the festival.

The present music directors are Laurie and Jim Kennedy, principal viola and principal cello of the Portland Symphony Orchestra.

For further information write Sebago-Long Lake Region Chamber Music Festival, Inc., P.O. Box 147, North Bridgton, Me., 04057, or call Linda Bliss, 207-774-1309 or Jim and Laurie Kennedy, 207-562-8890.

Red Cross blood drive set for July 16

The Bethel Area Health Center is sponsoring the Red Cross Blood Drive this summer.

Volunteers will be calling those people who have previously donated for purposes of setting up appointments.

This drive will be held on July 16 and will run from 12-5 p.m. at the West Parish Church on Church Street in Bethel.

Blood donation is a community responsibility. There is no substitute for human blood. You, a blood donor, and your fellow community volunteers who are generous enough to give your time and your blood, are vital to maintaining an adequate community supply. This ensures that blood will be available for those who need it, when they need it.

Please be generous in donating blood—the summer months are a particularly difficult time to maintain the blood supply. If you have any questions or concerns or would like to make an appointment to donate or volunteer, please call Linda Ray at the Bethel Area Health Center at 824-2193.

Chamber of Commerce

The Executive Committee met on Thursday, July 5, to discuss the agenda for the upcoming Board of Directors meeting, which is scheduled for Thursday, July 12.

Discussion centered around last minute details pertaining to Mollyockett Day. In addition to the road race, game of chance and lobster roll booth, the Chamber will be selling Maine Street '90 calendars, T-shirts and our new coupon booklet. The coupon booklet, which contains hundreds of dollars of value in local merchandise and services, will be sold for $10. A debt of gratitude goes out to Sunday River Ski Resort's Graphics and Marketing Department for their countless hours of volunteer labor on this project.

Details on the Aug. 21 Chamber Challenge Golf Tournament are being ironed out and applications for the event will be available within a week or so.

Pre-registrations for the Mollyockett Day Classic are coming in. The Chamber would urge anyone who is interested in running to pre-register before July 18 which will guarantee you a beautiful commemorative t-shirt. Walkers are welcome for the five-mile course. The walkers' division should be limited to those who can do the five miles in 1½ hours. Applications are available at the Bethel Town Office, Prim's and at the Chamber office.

Rotary Club notes

The Tuesday, July 3, Bethel Rotary meeting centered around club business. New President Scott Dennis led the meeting.

John Head, treasurer, gave a financial report and indicated that all accounts have healthy balances. The Board of Directors voted to donate $100 to the local Androscoggin Home Health Service and $25 to the Raymond Rotary Club for their Charter Night.

Scott announced, with regret, the resignation of Dave Denison, who has served the club with energy as secretary. Bruce Powell has been appointed to fill the position.

Announcements were made on the upcoming Rotary auction, as well as Mollyockett Day duties. The Rotary Club will be selling steak and baked potatoes on Mollyockett Day, as well as the famous barbeque chicken.

The highlight of the meeting was presentation of the Presidential Citation Award to our club. Only 10 percent of the Rotary Clubs worldwide receive such an honor. It is truly an indication of the extraordinary amount of hours our club members put into community projects and service.

The roster of guests included Dennis Doyon and John Caron of Bethel; George Ross, Al Barth, Tom Keniston, David Dow and Larry Kertner of Oxford Hills; Ira Pitcher of Lewiston-Auburn; Arthur Meader of Rumford; Bill Lowther, Gil Robinson and Charlie Felt, summer regulars; and Mr. Spilker from Dusseldorf, Germany.

CARD OF THANKS

Words cannot begin to express our appreciation for all that was done for us after the sudden loss of husband, father, grandfather and friend, Bob Lowe. Rock hounds

Theriault is a carpenter in Freeport during the colder months; summers he works the tides on the Freeport clam flats, hauling in on a rare, good day, three bushels of steamers.

He said Saturday he was playing hooky from work. A self-labeled "beginner" rock hound, Theriault says he hopes, not necessarily here, but eventually, "to find a piece of watermelon tourmaline and enough gold to make a ring."

Nearby, Brian Ford sits, his feet in a bushel basket-sized pit he has dug. Ford is a firefighter and ambulance attendant from Scituate, Mass.

"I do this to relax," he says. Turning, he takes a chunk of rock offered by his son Jason and points out the black tourmaline crystals on one side. Flipping it over, he points out for Jason the 'books' of mica imbedded in the other side of the matrix. "We kind of make a family thing out of it. We go all over the country," Ford says.

His favorite part of the country for collecting? "Utah," he says, where he has found dinosaur bones, obsidian, fossils.

A sideline of Ford's rock collecting is giving talks on minerals in schools around Scituate. "I'm here trying to get more specimens," he says.

Across the way, Terry Hewes is clearly, albeit a bit eccentrically, outfitted for rock hunting. Sitting on the side of a hill, she is wearing off-white overalls, reinforced at both knees and the seat with patches of what appears to be thick leather. Also, she wears calf-high black army boots.

She absent-mindedly digs in the dirt with a hand-sized, three-pronged garden cultivator as she talks to others nearby.

"O-o-o-h-h," she says suddenly, her voice rising in exclamation. Out of the dirt she picks what proves to be among the better finds of the day—a quartz crystal, terminated on one end. It is about two inches long. She holds it up for the people around her to see, briefly passes it around, then tucks it into her backpack.

"I've always said that if I dig in one of these holes long enough I always find something," she says.

Nestor Tamminen, now over 80, has owned the quarry property since before it was opened in 1930 for mining feldspar, according to Jane Perham, writing in Maine's Treasure Chest: Gems and Minerals of Oxford County. During the years his property has been mined, Tamminen has handled all the specimen material it has produced, including many fine quartz crystals.

Tamminen's Quarry is open regularly to the public for a small fee, payable at Nestor Tamminen's house near the quarry entrance road just off Route 117.

On Sunday (too late for photos for this week's paper), a group of 56 rockhounds converges at Bumpus Quarry off Route 5 in Albany.

Quarry owner Rodney "Bunny" Kimball greets the largest contingent as it arrives and lectures them briefly before they go off to explore the area.

Kimball says he allows visitors at his quarry for $8 each; miners for $25 per car or $50 per small pickup truck.

Visitors, he explains, come to look at the site, which includes two cave-like tunnels from the original feldspar mining operation. Miners, on the other hand, carry buckets and hammers or picks in search of the quarry's rose quartz and beryl.

GROUP LEADER Terry Hewes of Farmington scratches in the dirt at Tammminen Mine last Saturday. Hewes, one of the lucky ones, found a quartz crystal with one terminated end in the hole.

The rock hounds, both with and without buckets and hammers, move off into the woods, some to spend the afternoon digging among the mostly overgrown rock dumps left over from the major mining days, others to view the cool, cavernous tunnels.

Sarah Spencer of Rumford, advertising director for the festival, said Monday, "It was the first time we've had that many go on a field trip... It was a hullabaloo for the four of us (at the fairgrounds' gate) working just as fast as we could work. We expect as few as six or 10-12, sometimes 20."

Each field trip participant paid his or her $1 fee to the festival, plus $1 for the field trip, Spencer said. She noted that 989 people attended the two-day festival. "That's 25 or 30 more than last year," she said, and included people from Scotland, California, Florida, Canada.

Spencer said she expects the field trips will next summer again be included in the festival, the 30th to be sponsered by the Oxford County Mineral and Gem Club.

Gypsy moths

In the end most trees, especially hardwoods will survive a gypsy moth attack, and the most effective moth control is Nature's own. Infestations may last from two to five years, but in the end starvation, disease, parasites and predators eventually combine to bring about a sudden crash of the moth population.

And there appears to be yet another natural moth-control measure on the horizon. According to an Associated Press report, researchers in Amherst, Mass., have recently rediscovered a moth-killing fungus originially introduced in this country in 1910—40 years after the moths themselves were introduced by an experimenter seeking a better silk worm.

According to the University of Massachusetts researchers, the resurgent fungus is apparently responsible for the collapse of the gypsy moth population in the western part of that state.

Lake Christopher

a state law now requires real estate agents to sign a form indicating that the septic system has not failed within the past 18 months. "That's put pressure on the agents to keep the sellers honest," she said.

Two other pending septic improvements should also help the lake.

At the Maine Conservation School, director Buzz Gamble reports that a fund-raising drive has been launched to raise the estimated $50,000 required to allow the school to install a single state-of-the-art septic system.

Gamble said the new system would replace the three systems currently in place, the newest of which is 15 years old.

The present systems meet the state's guidlines, Gamble said, and these are no excessive discharges. But use of the school has increased dramatically in recent years, "and we want to be on the safe side," he said.

Back in the village center, Dan Reavis, owner of the Village Store, said that he has received state approval on the design of a new system for the restaurant and convenience store.

In order to reduce pressure on the present system, which is of undetermined age, Reavis said, the restaurant's capacity has been cut back temporarily to 22 seats, paper plates are used whenever possible, and the rest rooms are closed to the public.

Design of the new system was complicated by the small size of the property and the proximity to a stream, but with state approval finally in hand, Reavis said, installation work is expected to begin within two weeks.

The water-quality benefits that result from local septic improvements, past and planned, help to balance the pressure put on the lake by increased development and recreational use.

"Just what one modern washing machine puts out can really take a toll on the lake," said the planning board's Hand.

On balance, Lake Christopher seems to have held its own over the past ten years. DEP monitoring, conducted with the help of local volunteers, shows little change in either clarity or phosphorous content since 1979.

DEP biologist Webster Pearsall characterized the lake's clarity (measured by a Secchi disk) as "good," and the phosphorous content as "moderate."

Neither index for Lake Christopher is at an ideal point, he said, but neither appears to show a deterioration in water quality.

Last summer the Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood hired Scott Williams, of Lake and Watershed Resource Management Associates, to conduct additional tests on the lake, as well as on North Pond and Concord Pond.

Williams' findings tend to corroborate the DEP view of the lake "Lake Christopher has a clarity slightly above average for Maine lakes," he reported, and "phosphorous is moderately high in mid to late summer."

Overall, he wrote, the lake is "moderately sensitive and care should be taken in any future land use to prevent the increase of stormwater and phosphorous from reaching the lake system."

"Phosphorous is enemy number one," said the association's Nancy Willard, who also monitors the lake regularly.

Phosphorous in a lake comes primarily from detergents and fertilizers, and, too, from roof and road runoff. It feeds the growth of algea, which cloud the water and can ultimately deplete the oxygen level in the lake to the point where other forms of aquatic life suffocate.

Willard advises that the single most important thing area residents can do to help the lake is to cut back as much as possible on the use of phosphorous, especially in laundry detergents.

Non-phosphorous detergents, such as Arm & Hammer, are available for laundry she said, and relatively low phosphorous detergents are available for other cleaning uses.

(The Community Lake Association of Woodstock and Greenwood will hold its annual meeting, at the Maine Conservation School, on Saturday, July 14 at 9 a.m. All those interested in preserving and improving the quality of local lakes are urged to attend.)

Andover

* MCI of Richardson, Texas has requested a building permit for a 4,700 square foot building to be erected in Andover. They also seek to erect a 90 foot antenna, which will require a special town meeting due to the present 60 foot height restriction.

* The Department of Transportation will reimburse the town $41,688 this year for road assistance, as versus $46,899 allowed last year. This reduction is due to the Department's putting Maine towns on a more equitable scale.

* The fountain on the Common will be raised on the Common by the Highway Department in order to reinforce its base prior to Olde Home Days.

* A sign preventing illegal dumping will be erected at the dump.

* Ken Hill was sworn in as Code Enforcement Officer for Andover, receiving $10 an hour and $.22 per mile.

* Woodlawn Cemetery Sexton Ed Robinson has agreed to mow the Farmer's Hill Cemetery once this summer. A ledger will be purchased for the town office so Town Clerk Kathy Robinson can keep track of grave purchases.

* A request to attend a week-long assessing course in Orono by Town Administrator Rebecca Schachter was denied by the selectmen.
